

Dear sirs/madams,

The existing regulations are sufficient to handle the problems created by the few people who operate inconsiderately; we don't need more regulation as a result of what is basically a private issue, otherwise a precedent is set that every time a few individuals step on someone's toes a new rule must be added.

Also, according to the NTIA's research, many of the radios in use today would not meet this spec.

Sincerely,
B. Scott Lovell, KB1GYQ
